

Catholic Heart Work Camp comes to St. Thomas for work at Ss. Peter and Paul Catholic School

Catholic Heart Work Camp (CHWC) is a Roman Catholic youth service organization that has young Catholics, 13,000 strong the summer of 2017, in more than 50 different cities all over the world to “serve and restore homes and hearts, feed the hungry, lift the spirits of children, give hope to the disabled and provide help through partnerships with social agencies.” They also chip and scrape, prime and paint, haul and hustle, dig and plant, water and fertilize. A team of college students, with a manager, a director, priests to celebrate liturgy and confession, and a nurse are all ready to serve. They travel far and wide from their homes to places like Ss. Peter and Paul Catholic School (SPPS) in St. Thomas to lend heart and hand.

CHWC is a youth-friendly, Christ-centered ministry that faithfully and enthusiastically honors the Roman Catholic Church and its teachings. It is a powerful opportunity “to love the least of these.” †

Catholic Charities' September Food Drive

Please collect the following items at your church, school or workplace and bring them to Catholic Charities:

- Beans, lentils and rice
- Vienna sausage and powdered milk
- Canned meat and canned vegetables

This detachment from the larger group of CHWC missionaries took on a side job, as they spent hours picking up, hauling and removing trash and debris from the hillside lot behind the chancery. CHWC “litter-ally” serves in whatever way they are needed.

The group took up temporary residence in the school during the week, sleeping in classrooms. For youths accustomed to adventure, this was an adventure!
